Dr. James Sikes gets special recognition

The United States Department of Agriculture has recognized Dr. James H. Sikes Jr., U.S.D.A. veterinarian, for outstanding achievements in carrying out animal disease eradication programs.

Dr. Sikes, who has lived in Statesboro since January of 1954, received a certificate of merit from U.S.D.A. citing him for "Performance substantially exceeding the requirements of his position."

Dr. Sikes has been associated with the U. S. Department of Agriculture since June of 1947. He was transferred to Georgia from Arkansas in 1954, and has been in Statesboro since that time. He is a native of the Statesboro area.

Dr. Sikes is responsible for District State Federal disease eradication programs in all 14 South Georgia counties.

In cooperation with Julian Paulk of the State Department of Agriculture, Dr. Sikes has supervised the screwworm eradication program in South Georgia. Under this program, the screwworm was virtually eliminated from the state during the past year.

Now, Mr. Farmer

... COMPARE these prices and see how much money you lost by selling hogs on Wednesday.

FRIDAY'S AUCTION SALE
All No. 1's—$17.00

TRUE... when you sell with YOUR livestock market, you are selling with a stockyard that did not pay income tax last year.

YOUR... barn gave back to producers $8,459.00 of its gross commission, this being 26.7 per cent in bushing No. 1 hogs.

NOW... the question that we want you to get an answer from our tax-paying barn operator is, "How much income tax did he pay on his stockyard operation and how he has made this on selling livestock for growers in Bulloch County?"

IT IS NOT... that he sells all the livestock in Statesboro because we sold 27,989 head of hogs out of the 93,450 sold in Statesboro last year.

WEEK IN AND... week out we sell as many graded hogs as any barn in Statesboro.

WE ADMIT... that we do not have the volume in feeder hogs because by tax law we are not permitted to act in a speculative purpose.

DON'T BE MISLED... by all the high-flying claims.

WE PROMISE YOU... that we grade and weigh your hogs honestly and correctly and are in cahoots with no one and can get you top competitive prices on all of your livestock.

Soil Stewardship Week is said to be successful in Bulloch County

By E. T. "Red" MULLIS

Soil Stewardship Week, 1959, is now history. I would feel negligent indeed if I did not take this opportunity to thank all those who helped make it a successful week.

Needless to say that Mr. Paul Nesmith, Supervisor of the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District, helped make the week possible. It was he and the Supervisors from the other five counties which make up the District who made this week an objective of the District the first of the year. By their vote, they agreed to sponsor the week in connection with the State and National Association of Soil Conservation Districts. Mr. Nesmith also made talks to various groups to encourage their participation.

The Agricultural agencies in the county were most helpful in getting the necessary job done. The Extension Service with Roy Powell, Jones Preble exceeding the requirements of his position."

Industrial Arts projects now on display

Students in the junior and senior high schools of the First, Sixth and Eighth Congressional Districts and Augusta will be on display at Georgia Teachers College May 16, 1-10 p.m. and May 17, 2-5 p.m.

Fanning, Ophelia Ivester, Habersham; James Milton, Gilmer; Lois Robbins, Habersham; Robert Smith, Gilmer; Grace Stancliff, Habersham; and Nancy Woodall, Habersham.

Mr. K. J. Harris, school superintendent, and Mrs. Harris accompanied the group on their trip.

The Industrial Arts projects now on display this week in the old Fair Store on North Main.

These projects were selected by a team of judges from Georgia Teachers College who visited each school. The projects will be on display until Friday. During this time faculty members of Georgia Teachers College and management members of Rockwell Stationery Corporation will judge the projects and select the most outstanding entry.

Public announcement of the winner will be made during the Honors Day program at the winning student's school.

The Industrial Arts contest which was started in 1956 by the Rockwell Stationery Corporation is designed to encourage more participation in the industrial arts programs of the county schools. Every student that takes the course is eligible to submit a project. The student submitting the best entry receives a bronze engraved plaque along with a Rockwell Delta Stationery set complete with all necessary attachments.

All entries in the Fair Store display will automatically be included in the Industrial Arts Fair being held at Georgia Teachers College May 15 and 16. Projects completed by students throughout this entire region and as far away as Reidsville and Greenville will be on display at the Fair.

well had free free hours. He attended classes from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. and spent every afternoon in the cost-analysis section of his father's plant.

The younger Rockwell moved from department to department to learn all phases of the business. He spent some time abroad studying European manufacturing techniques and also spent a year learning Standard Steel Spring's design and that of Timken-Detroit Axle.

In 1940, Mr. Rockwell's ten-year training period was cut to five. He was elected vice president and controller of Rockwell Manufacturing, when those offices opened because of retirement of a senior executive of the company, Rockwell Manufacturing just a number of years ago. Mr. Rockwell said he was an executive in the armed services in the early Nineties.

"As a result, the whole ball of wax was thrown at me," Mr. Rockwell said.

"My father was in Washington during most of the war as director of production for the Maritime Commission. There was no one I could really turn to for guidance. I had to make my own decisions as to what to do and how to do it."

Mr. Rockwell noted that sales were no one I could really turn to for guidance. I had to make my own decisions as to what to do and how to do it.

Finally, in 1943, Mr. Rockwell had to forget temporarily what he had learned in the war as director of production for the Maritime Commission. There was no one I could really turn to for guidance. I had to make my own decisions as to what to do and how to do it.

Mr. Rockwell noted that sales were no one I could really turn to for guidance. I had to make my own decisions as to what to do and how to do it.

Rites held for Mrs. J. A. Barrs who died May 9

Mrs. J. A. Barrs, 72, died Saturday, May 9, after a long illness in the Oliver community. She was a member of the Church of God.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Leroy Sawyer, Elfers, Fla., and Mrs. Mildred Lee of Statesboro; one son, Lawrence Barrs of Jacksonville, Fla., 10 grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Sunday at 3 p.m. from New Hope Methodist Church, with Rev. P. C. Collins officiating, assisted by Rev. A. Gordon. Burial was in the church cemetery.

The body remained in the chapel of Barnes Funeral Home for just a number of years ago. Mr. Rockwell said he was an executive in the armed services in the early Nineties.

"As a result, the whole ball of wax was thrown at me," Mr. Rockwell said.

"My father was in Washington during most of the war as director of production for the Maritime Commission. There was no one I could really turn to for guidance. I had to make my own decisions as to what to do and how to do it."

HERE'S ANOTHER PACKAGE OF POWER YOU ORDERED

YES, YOU ORDERED IT by indicating you would use more and more electricity in the years ahead.

It's quite a package, this turbo-generator just installed at Plant McManus, near Brunswick. It weighs almost a million pounds, yet is built to the precise tolerances of a fine watch.

Under that sleek design is a generating capacity of 75,000 kilowatts, which exceeds the power of all the world animals—horses and mules—in Georgia.

The $15-million expansion of Plant McManus is only a single step in our construction program. Since World War II we have spent nearly half a billion dollars expanding and improving the electrical facilities that serve you. We have almost tripled our generating capacity, more than doubled our miles of power lines.

That kind of growth makes sure that you have plenty of low-cost and dependable electricity whenever and wherever you need it.

Stubbs Tire Corp. Camp Labjoy Proves Success To Students

Grand Opening

Mr. Olan Stubbs today invites the citizens of this section to attend the three-day grand opening of the Stubbs Tire Corporation located at 430 South Main Street.

Mr. Stubbs states that a feature of the three-day grand opening celebration May 14-15-16 will include the all new Lodi Band, all electrically controlled retreading plant, and the U.S. Royal Safety-First line of passenger, foreign car and truck tires.

He states that officials of the U.S. Rubber Company of the Atlanta district will be in place during the celebration to meet the people of Statesboro and Bulloch County.

He urges the people to visit the plant and register for the prizes which will be given away on Saturday afternoon at 7 o'clock. He points out that one day not have buy anything.

He stated that his staff includes Mr. J. B. Johnson, bookkeeper and Joe Aldrich, service department manager and J. C. "Red" Fennell, retreading shop manager.

Dent Newton at Rockwell meet in Pennsylvania

E. Dent Newton, Chief Buyer for the local Rockwell plant, will be in town for a "Purchase-Saving" Conference held at corporate headquarters in "Pittsburgh," Penn. More than 50 persons, including high level executives from the metals industry, Rockwell management personnel and purchasing personnel from Rockwell's 22 plants, attended the three-day meeting.

"Purchase-saving"—cost savings in purchasing—is the theme of the Conference, which was planned and directed by C. Warner McVicar, Rockwell director of purchasing.

Featured speakers on the program were Colonel W. F. Rockwell, "What Management Expects of Purchasing," J. G. Smith, vice president, Purchasing, Pittsburgh Steel Company, "Purchasing's Role in Modern Management," Myron L. Chase, President, Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel, "How to Sell and When to Buy Iron and Steel Scrap" as well as L. A. Davis, Sr., Rockwell vice-president and George P. Lutjen, American Metal Market, Assistant to the publisher.

Mr. Newton has been with Rockwell since June, 1956. He began employment in the Purchasing Department as a buyer and advanced to his present position of Chief Buyer in November, 1956. He and his wife reside at 210 Donaldson Street, Statesboro.

S.E.B.H. Future Nurses Club wins state award

Announcement is made this week that the Future Nurses of Bulloch County High School had won the award for the best planned program and exhibit at the First Future Nurses Club convention at Marietta, on April 25.

The winning exhibit included the full range of the club's activities with pictures of their uniforms, drawings of their club pin, and emblem, snapshots of the nurses as they carried out their duties in the school clinic, pictures of the installation of club officers and members and a report of their activities, plus other activities.

Their activities this year included work in the school clinic, raising funds for the clinic, delivery service, BRAGG MOTOR SERVICE, Courtland St. Phone 4-5519, 3-19-16.

The club sent two delegates to the state pre-planning convention last fall.

Mrs. M. L. Clontz is faculty advisor for the club which holds monthly meetings.

The club was organized on September 27, 1956. It is sponsored by the Statesboro Business and Professional Women's Club. The B. & P.W. club provides a three-year scholarship to a high school graduate who is a member of a Future Nurses Club in Bulloch County.

Hilda Shuman is president of the S.E.B.H. club and Margaret Mitchell is vice president. Jean Starling is secretary and Crystal DeLoach is treasurer.
